Date of Incident: May 20, 2025
Policy Number: 01ECA6841

Dear Vada Andre Samuels:

This notice is to make you aware of a program that may save you money on your insurance premiums in your state. The installation of a specified impact-resistant roofing product may qualify for significant premium discounts. To determine the discount amount that would apply to your policy, you will need to contact your State Farm® agent.

Key Features

- Better resistance to wind and impact from hail and flying debris than non-impact resistant products. Some are warranted by the manufacturer against wind up to 130 mph.
- A long lifespan – most impact-resistant shingles come with a 30- to 50-year limited product warranty.
- Protection against fire – most products are Class A fire rated.
- You may be eligible for an annual discount on your insurance premium.<sup>1</sup>
- If you sell your property, the new owner may be eligible for an insurance discount, which can be a good selling point.
- The likelihood of roof damage is reduced compared to a non-impact resistant product.
- If you have a wood roof and replace it with impact-resistant roofing, you could lower your insurance premiums.<sup>2</sup>
- Less impact on the environment since fewer roofs will be damaged during storms.

Adding the Discount

- Contact your State Farm agent before installing an impact-resistant roof, or for more information about roofing discounts.
- You must install a qualifying roofing product listed on statefarm.com®.
- You must have the roofing contractor complete the Roofing Installation Information and Certification Form.
